FTTH Council Europe's Vice President to speak at European Commission's workshop on Connected Communities

BRUSSELS, 23 June 2015 – The FTTH Council Europe's Vice President Ana Pesovic will speak at the Connected Communities "Experience sharing" workshop organised by the European Commission on 25 June in Brussels. She will specifically focus on the user benefits of future digital economy.

Included into the Digital Agenda for Europe initiative, this workshop aims to facilitate experience sharing with representatives from the Commission, the World Bank, the European Investment Bank, regional and national authorities and many others.

"The FTTH Council Europe supports this project as we strongly believe that bringing together populations through digital enablers is a necessary step towards a better economy and society" said Ana Pesovic, Vice-President of the FTTH Council Europe. "In this matter, fibre to the home access networks enable the development of leading edge applications and services that contribute greatly to build connected communities and change lives for the better. The socio-economic benefits are huge, and FTTH is future-proof, making it an ideal infrastructure for public funding and private investment alike."
